

Allen & Overy is pleased to invite you to a Workshop on 23 October, 2008 at 16.00:

“Nuclear energy in Italy:
from a political platform
to the development and financing of private projects”

The recent debate on a possible return to nuclear power in Italy has been swaying, until today from safety and cost-efficiency of power supply issues on one side, and on environmental concerns, on the other. This workshop is aimed at assembling the major players on the markets and some of the leading experts in this field to explore how to move away from the merely political perspective to consider the more practical issues of funding (and the consequent risk allocation among the various stakeholders) for the construction of nuclear power which, in a liberalised market, will be entrusted to private initiative.

In particular, international best practices will be analysed with a view to promote a round table on how these could be adapted to the Italian context.

Chairman of the workshop will be Lorenzo Parola, Allen & Overy, Partner, Head of Energy and Utilities Department.

The Panel includes:

- Roberto Adinolfi, Ansaldo Nucleare, Managing Director*
